Now, you can - thanks to a camera with a relatively wide lens in Berlin. As per usual, there are two teams. The "Lazers" and the "Wizards." And yes, they play basketball, but this is no ordinary game.Q: How to make a variable equal a string created in a function I am currently making a game which outputs the number of guesses used (NUM_OF_ATTEMPTS), the number of guesses needed to figure out the correct answer (ATTEMPTS_REQUIRED), and the correct answer (ANSWER_REQUIRED). Here is my code:

import random
def roll_the_dice():
    die_1 = random.randint(1, 6)
    die_2 = random.randint(1, 6)
    return die_1, die_2
def play_the_game(players, dice):
    pass
def check_answer(players, dice, answer, guessed):
    if guessed == answer:
        num_of_attempts = NUM_OF_ATTEMPTS
        attempts_required = ATTEMPTS_REQUIRED correct_answer = ANSWER_REQUIRED
    else:
        num_of_attempts = NUM_OF_ATTEMPTS
        attempts_required = ATTEMPTS_REQUIRED
        correct_answer = 0
    print(num_of_attempts, attempts_required, correct_answer) return num_of_attempts, attempts_

Kursbuch.pdf Downloads2007-08 Liga Leumit
The 2007-08 Liga Leumit season began on 29 August 2007. It was the thirty-eighth season as the top-flight of Israeli football. Hapoel Be'er Sheva had the longest winning streak in the league, with eleven games during the season.

During the season, Liga Leumit were restructured to become a separate championship, won by Hapoel Be'er Sheva. Final

How should I return a player's positions? So I am making a card game that tracks the location of the cards in the hand. Currently I am returning an array: `hand_positions = { hand_position:
hand.cards[0], "2 of hearts": hand.cards[1], "2 of spades": hand.cards[2], "4 of hearts": hand.cards[3], "4 of spades": hand.cards[4] }` I then iterate through that object for each card, storing their location and returning a single object with the card. I then have a set of buttons on the "playable" side of the interface that can easily be found by the player by using a single object to match the buttons. This is also working fine, but I feel like this could be
